Dr Catherine Chisholm

In 1948 Catherine Chisholm was invited as the senior consultant paediatrician to be the first President of the Manchester Paediatric Club. She had been one of the two first women to graduate from the Manchester Medical School in 1904. She overcame many of the prejudices of the time but had to take junior hospital appointments outside Manchester. After two years she entered general practice in the slums of central Manchester and soon became known for her service to women and children.

After encountering failure in an application for a post as children's physician in a hospital, she decided to found her own and in 1914 opened twelve beds in an adapted house in what is now Hathersage Road. This hospital, staffed entirely by women, grew into the Duchess of York Hospital for Babies in Levenshulme.

The Catherine Chisholm Memorial Lecture was endowed by subscription after her death in 1952 and is administered and presented by the Manchester Medical Society (Manchester Paediatric Club).
