

Paul is Professor of Critical Care at the University of Manchester, Honorary Clinical Consultant at the Northern Care Alliance NHS Foundation Trust (Salford Care Organisation) and NIHR Clinical Research Network's National Deputy Medical Director. He provides strategic national leadership for the development and delivery of a large portfolio of NHS clinical research in acute hospital settings and represents NIHR internationally. As a former National Specialty Lead for Critical Care, he served NIHR's Urgent Public Health Research Advisory Group, providing expert advice on research priority for DHSC and UK's CMOs during the COVID-19 pandemic. In addition, he is Research Professor at the Humanitarian and Conflict Response Institute, providing strategic interdisciplinary leadership in health and social justice.